

Newsletter Winter 2005-2006

Happy New Year!!! This has been a whirlwind of activity through the last of the year and it will be good to settle into 2006, hopefully with less intensity. Some of you know, our house was broken into in mid-December and my purse and a number of eBay packages, ready for shipment, were stolen. It has been a real lesson in letting go, cleansing and forgiveness. Through it all, friends have been there for us and it has been both a low point and yet one of the highest points in our lives ... a special thanks to you all!

This month, we are pleased to present the starbrairy. This is a special type of crystal and a fitting topic for this newsletter as in the purse that was stolen was an important starbrairy crystal, probably now discarded by the thief. Starbrairies are literally crystals with star records on them left by the Star Peoples who have been visiting Earth for eons. The following information was channeled through Mirahh (fortunately not the one in the purse) and it details the people who left these records.

StarBrairies are recognized by the presence of glyph-like markings, symbols and geometric patterns plus usually a doorway or key. By aligning fingers with the doorways or keys, you can unlock different layers, depending on orientation. Companion crystals are important - they either come with the crystal (purchased with or given with) or appear shortly thereafter. They don't have to be quartz, but work with the main crystal to unlock different layers or even gain access to the crystal itself. All starbrairies work like that - the companions facilitate access, although it's possible to gain access just from the starbrairy itself.

There are at least 6 different peoples who left crystal records. The most sought after are the maps, histories and legends of the people of the Cassiopeia system. They are recognized by more flowing lines and symbols along the sides of the crystal. While they often manifest key markings, but there will always be different and comfortable ways to hold the crystal, facilitating the opening of the many layers. These are the most detailed crystals and contain HUGE amounts of information - like encyclopedias, although even more in depth. In some cases, they blend information from other Star Peoples.

Another type features geometric symbols (triangles, squares, circles, etc.) along the sides, often with profound keys. These contain information from the Pleiades. These first two types are the most important and are the basis for most of the Atlantean and Lemurian recollections.

Another type of starbrairy shows more linear patterns, rather like a combination of the first two. The peoples leaving these records came from the Leo systems and the information contained within these crystals is historic: names, dates, weather, etc. They contain much factual information and not as philosophical as the first two.

Another type is a series of indented triangles and dashes - a kind of Morse Code. These are often called "cosmic crystals" and they resemble a meteor shower. They are read by the "dots" and dashes and arise from a system in the Little Dipper (Ursus Minor).

Another type is the Titanium included quartz with the deep ridges and furrows that create definite glyphs (sometimes called sacred sigels) in the faces of the crystal. It is the only starbrairy that is most commonly marked in the faces rather than the sides. These arose from the Orion system, and of all, these need companion crystals. The information contained in them is very, very detailed and the companions help make it both attainable and understandable. These crystals were of great importance to the Native American cultures.

The last is a slightly different type in that they are almost always DT/ET. They have keys, but these keys are sometimes quite tiny. The critical thing about these is the sides appear to be layered, similar to a lightbrairy, but with no raised face/termination. It's as if the ET crystals overgrew the main one. These come from Andromeda peoples and these appear to be connected to crystals of the Cassiopeia or Pleiades peoples. They often appear as companions leading to speculation that there may have been collaboration among the peoples.

All of the starbrairy formations hold information of peoples who had a positive influence on human growth and evolution. The records were left here so that in the event of catastrophe, there would be a permanent record to help Earth rebuild. Starbrairies were placed in many locations so the records could be accessed by peoples all over the world. There are sets of crystals - like chapters or series. When one comes to you, all of a sudden, you will find many more. It is important to ask the order to read them.

This was initially channeled about three years ago and since that time, there have been new and different starbrairies appearing - from Sirius, Lyra and others. And there are a number of Master Starbrairies and Starbrairy Rosetta Stones now. The Master Starbrairy is a decoder and can be placed over another starbrairy, reading through the sides in order to get the proper information. A Rosetta Stone holds a minimum of two star languages and is able to establish a dictionary of terms like English to Spanish or Spanish to English.

Starbrairies are appearing in profusion now - the time is right to raise the collective level of consciousness. We access the knowledge in the starbrairy to rise to a new level, act at a new level and evolve to a new level to counteract some of the things going on in the world right now. The more the Star Seeds that participate, the better we can reinforce the "force field" of the Earth. This force field is what I call "resin" - it is a color that is both rose and gold and incorporates a fragrance (very hard to describe). It is thin in areas where the Earth is challenged - like the Middle East. By activating the Collective Consciousness, we can do something positive. This is the gift of the Star Peoples. They have assured us that we would always have the resources we need as long as we utilize, but not waste them.

Notably, there is a special class of starbrairies emerging: the Beacon Crystal. Meant for a sole Light Worker and Star Seed, these special crystals are critical to the formation of the "cells" that are them part of the larger energy grid. The Beacons are capable of directioning energies into the resin and reinforcing the force field.

Other channelings are coming through Mirahh because a dear friend (Joani of ancientfuture on eBay) lent me two starbriaries so that I could grid the proper group. I hope to release more channelings within the next few months. In the meantime, I welcome your channelings from starbrairies you encounter and I'll add your information (with your permission and proper credit) to the chronicles. Please email me if you'd like to see sample pictures from each group.

In the meantime, enjoy the yin time, rest and relax from the holidays and most importantly, laugh often, eat chocolate and don't be afraid to love!
